

Can I turn on logging for specific event rules?

THE INFORMATION IN THIS ARTICLE APPLIES TO:

- EFT v7 and later

QUESTION

Can I turn on logging for specific event rules?

ANSWER

Yes. As explained in the logging.cfg file, you can enable logging for a specific event rule:

To turn on logging for a specific event rule, you can append the event rule name (spaces replaced with '_') after the site name. The logger name will have this format:

log4cplus.logger.Events.[optional event sub logger].[site name].[event rule name]

For example, to enable trace level logging for the folder monitor rule

"My Folder Monitor" for the site "My Site" the logger entry would be:

log4cplus.logger.Events.FolderMonitor.My_Site.My_Folder_Monitor=TRACE

Notes: - Since logger names are case sensitive, the case of site and rule names used as loggers must match their use in EFT.

- If site or event rule names contain spaces they must be replaced with underscores when used in the logger entry.

- Not all event logging entries support site or event rule level logging.

Refer to the help topic "EFT.log File" in your version of EFT help for details of editing the logging.cfg file.
